Draft Callup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selective Service announced Tuesday that 8,900 men with lottery numbers up through 75 will be called in August, raising the callup ceiling from No. 50 set for July.

At the same time the acting draft director, Byron Peplone, indicated that the draft will not reach beyond No. 100 this year and it is unlikely to reach that number next year.

Those to be called in August will get their notices in the mail starting July 3.

The August call will bring the total drafted in 1972 to 31,100, passing the halfway mark to the 50,000 Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has set as the ceiling for this year. No draft calls were issued the first three months of the year.

The April, May and June callup totaled 15,000 and 7,200 were sent notices to report next month.

Those being drafted are mainly men born in 1952 who are classified 1A, 1AO and 1O.

A 1A is a man available for military service. A 1AO is a conscientious objector willing to go into the military for non-combat duty. An 1O is a conscientious objector who must serve compensating two-years' duty in public service in a civilian role.

Peplone ordered the draft boards to schedule armed forces preinduction exams for prime draft candidates with numbers through No. 100. Previously the cutoff for exams was No. 90.

A Selective Service spokesman said, however, the actual draft may stay at 75 or not reach much beyond that.

Men with low numbers lose deferments in large numbers in the last half of the year. Last year the draft reached No. 125 in midyear and stayed there. The year before it reached 195 in midyear and stayed there.

A great deal will depend on how much the most recent change in the rules affects the situation. Starting next month men may join the Reserve or National Guard after they receive their induction notices up to 10 days before their draft reporting date.

Previously they could not do so after receiving their notices. A flood of enlistments in Reserve and National Guard could push the lottery ceiling higher.

Pilots' Strike

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Security Council approved a declaration Tuesday condemning acts against the safety of civil aviation and calling for "effective measures to deal with those who commit such acts."

The unanimous decision of the 15-nation council was reached after an intensive round of private consultations and announced by the council president, Ambassador Lazar Mojsov of Yugoslavia.

The action was spurred by a partial stoppage of commercial air travel by protesting pilots which began Monday morning and ended early Tuesday.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush said the declaration was not as strong as the United States had desired but he said he welcomed the decision as well as action taken Monday by the International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal.

"We earnestly hope," he said, "that these actions will lead to effective measures against hijacking and other acts interfering with international civil aviation."

The 24-hour strike by thousands of airline pilots cost the world's airlines an estimated $65 million in lost revenue and ended at 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Air service the world over was back to normal.

In Montreal, the International Civil Aviation Organization took what was described as a "heluva first step" by ordering its legal committee to draft a convention that would oblige its members in 124 countries to take unspecified sanctions against nations that cooperate with hijackers or extortionists.

The ICAO is a specialized agency of the United Nations established to deal with international problems affecting commercial aviation.

The International Federation of Air Line Pilots Associations—IFALPA—with 50,000 pilots in 64 nations, called the strike to dramatize its plea for stronger measures against hijackers.

But most of the 31,000 member pilots in the United States, enjoined from taking part in the worldwide protest, flew on Monday. Domestic service was normal save for Northeast and Eastern Air Lines, the only U.S. carriers that shut down.

Indochina War

SAIGON (AP) — A North Vietnamese regiment backed by tanks counterattacked South Vietnamese marines north of Hue on Tuesday, triggering a dawn-to-dusk battle that left 268 men dead, military spokesmen reported.

The Saigon command said Wednesday that 237 North Vietnamese troops and 31 marines were killed. Military sources said at least 50 other marines were wounded. The North Vietnamese regiment was said to number up to 1,000 men.

Field reports said 10 North Vietnamese tanks were knocked out by light antitank weapons and air strikes.

The South Vietnamese were in their third day of a sweep into occupied Quang Tri Province, adjacent to Vietnam's northern border.

Officers said the North Vietnamese counterattacked the marine positions at four different locations 28 to 32 miles north of Hue in the southern and eastern sectors of the province which fell into North Vietnamese control last month.

U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers attacked a big North Vietnamese ammunition depot west of Quang Tri City and pilots reported it went up in flames with more than 200 explosions. Several trucks also were reported destroyed nearby.

Five waves of U.S. B52 bombers—15 planes—struck above Quang Tri Province inside North Vietnam at rear bases and supply depots in the region of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone. Dong Hoi is 90 miles north of Hue.

Nearly 3,000 marines backed by U.S. air and naval power launched a spoiling operation Sunday into Quang Tri Province, which was captured by the North Vietnamese May 1. South Vietnam's northernmost province now is considered an extension of North Vietnamese territory and the enemy has established bases that could be used in an assault on Hue, 25 miles southeast.

Claim Big Primary Victory George 'Sweeps' New York

Court Of Appeals Reverses Delegation Reform Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Court of Appeals Tuesday held that reform measures aimed at sending more minority-group members to the Democratic National Convention cannot be ruled on by the courts until they are put into effect.

The decision by the three-judge panel reversed a ruling Monday by U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr.

Hart had said, in effect, that to reshape delegations to reflect the state's proportion of blacks, women and young people violated the constitutional rights of slated delegates.

The Democratic National Committee asked the appeals court to reverse the decision on grounds the ruling, which dashed long-planned hopes of many reformers in the Democratic party, would cause a major tragedy at the convention scheduled to start July 10. Over 40 per cent of the delegates are being challenged by reformers.

The appeals court ruled: "The regulations in question do not present... a sufficient likelihood of injury to the constitutional rights of plaintiff to warrant action by the court in the absence of their concrete application."

Hart, a former Republican chairman in the District of Columbia, said the Democrats had no right to require any state to balance its delegation with minority-group members. Those who sponsor a delegate slate can "put anybody on it they want" he said.

He struck down also a reform provision under which delegates could be barred from the convention if they were part of a slate endorsed by local officials who were in office prior to Jan. 1. That rule was aimed at diminishing the delegate control of old-time party bosses, but Hart said it infringed on their right of free speech and association.

Attorney Joseph A. Califano Jr., who presented the national committee's appeal, said the district court decision could prove a major tragedy if allowed to stand. He urged the appeals court to expedite the case, noting that the Supreme Court is nearing a summer recess. And the party itself, he said, would have little time before the convention to unravel the confusion if Hart's order were not overturned.

Hart's ruling had come in a suit brought by delegates allied with Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago. The 59 Daley delegates are under challenge before the Democratic Credentials Committee, a case involving both reforms which Hart ruled out.

Altogether, more than 50 separate challenges to convention delegates are underway, involving slates from 25 states. About 80 per cent of the challenges are over the issue of balance by age, race or sex.

The Credentials Committee is scheduled to begin pre-convention hearings in Washington on the challenges this Sunday. Of the 2,512 convention delegates already selected, some 1,082, or about 43 per cent, are under challenge. Field hearings so far in Alabama, South Carolina, Arizona and downstate Illinois have produced reports by committee staff officers favorable to challengers, although the full committee can reverse the findings.

Chairman O'Brien Sues Re-Election Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters a "blatant act of political espionage," party Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien sued the Committee for the Re-election of the President and others Tuesday for $1 million.

The civil suit, filed in U.S. District Court, contends that the break-in Saturday was an invasion of privacy and that the Democrats' civil rights were violated.

O'Brien said also the alleged attempts to plant bugging devices during the break-in was in violation of laws against wiretapping.

Five men, including James W. McCord, chief security officer for both the Republican National Committee and the committee in charge of President Nixon's re-election campaign, were arrested Saturday at the Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate apartment-hotel complex. Both GOP committees announced Monday that McCord had been fired.

O'Brien said the Committee for the Re-election of the President is requested in the complaint to open its records and divulge its exact ties with McCord. It wants listed all payments made to McCord and reasons for them.

Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, chairman of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said the lawsuit "represents another example of sheer demagoguery on the part of Mr. O'Brien." Mitchell called the legal action a political stunt.

O'Brien said as far as he is concerned the break-in had a "clear line of direction to the Committee for the Re-election of the President" and there is a "developing clear line to the White House."

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that a consultant to the White House special counsel Charles W. Colson is listed in the address books of two of the five men arrested. The newspaper reported that federal sources said the address books contain the name and home number of Howard E. Hunt, the consultant, with the notations: "W. House" and "W.H."

A White House official said Hunt last worked for the White House on March 23, for a regular daily consultant fee. The Post said Hunt worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1949 to 1970.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said at a noon briefing that Hunt's role was primarily consulting in the field of narcotics activities, relating to the flow of drugs into this country.

"I talked with Colson after reading the Washington Post story," said Ziegler. "He made it quite clear to me that he is in no way involved."

Named in the lawsuit are McCord and McCord Associates Inc., a Maryland security firm, the Committee to Re-elect the President and the four other individuals charged with the break-in.

They are named in the suit as Bernard Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank Sturgis, and Virgilio R. Gonzales.

O'Brien, in a news conference before Ziegler held his briefing, said that he is "shocked to learn that the White House, through its official spokesman, deems unworthy of notice this blatant act of political espionage."

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. George McGovern's campaign forces said Tuesday night they were capturing at least 175 to 178 delegate votes in New York's final to the presidential primary season.

The McGovern projection came with only a few scattered returns independently tallied in an election slowed by a complex ballot and marked by charges of irregularities in some precincts.

The projection by McGovern's organization would push the South Dakota senator past his targeted 200 of New York's 278 nominating votes at the Democratic National Convention.

McGovern won 41 delegates unopposed, and his headquarters claimed to have the lead in 107 of 130 races in which some returns had been tallied.

The vote count was slow, and in one Buffalo area congressional district the polls were kept open until 11 p.m. because of faulty voting machines. The charges of irregularities came from politicians in New York City.

McGovern hoped the New York outcome would put him within reach of first ballot nomination at the Democratic convention in Miami Beach.

All but 30 of the 278 New York delegates were chosen in the primary, with the balance to be selected Saturday by the state Democratic committee in proportion to the outcome of the election.

There are no Humphrey delegates on the New York ballot.

Ground F111 After Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force grounded its entire fleet of U.S.-based F111 tactical fighter planes Tuesday following two crashes of the $9 million planes.

The Air Force said in a brief statement the grounding was ordered as "a precautionary measure" and would remain in effect until the cause of the accidents is determined.

Affected by the order are 215 F111s based at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., Cannon AFB, N.M., and Mountain Home AFB, Idaho. Not affected are 67 bomber versions of the F111 assigned to the Strategic Air Command and 75 F111s based at Upper Heyford England.

Two crewmen piloting an F111 were killed Sunday when their plane plunged into Choc-tawatchee Bay shortly after taking off from Eglin AFB, Fla. The nature of the trouble was not known.

On June 15 the two-man crew of an F111 from Mountain Home AFB reported an in-flight explosion and safely bailed out of the plane, the Air Force said.

The crashes were the 21st and 22nd for the swing-wing plane with a history of controversy and mechanical problems. It was known as the TFX during its development.

The Air Force has had to ground the planes a number of times following fatal crashes.

Despite the problems, the Air Force claims the F111s have accumulated a better accident and safety record at 100,000 hours flying time than most other jet fighter planes.

Child-Development Bill Passes Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed 73-12 Tuesday a $2.95-billion child-development bill designed to fund the biggest program of federally backed day-care centers in history.

The measure was substantially modified from a 1971 version in an effort to meet objections of President Nixon who killed last year's measure with a veto.

But, in its closing votes, the Senate beat back several Republican amendments to carry out the administration views. Some GOP senators said they believe another veto is likely if the bill is sent again to the White House in its present form.

The Senate vote forwarded the legislation to the House. So far the Education and Labor Committee in that branch has given no indication of when it plans to act on it.

Sponsors said the bill should fund 700,000 new day-care spaces in its first year of full operation which would double the number now available.

They said that millions of mothers now work either through choice or because two incomes are essential for their families.

Often small children are left to fend for themselves now because no arrangements can be made for their care.

But a few senators strongly opposed to the legislation insisted that it would accelerate tendencies of families to break up and deprive children of a mother's care at the time they need it most.

Presidential Vote No Real Choice?

A recurrent criticism of the American political system, one which comes up at least every four years, is the charge that the selection of a president is nothing but a choice between Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

The idea is that the two major parties are essentially so similar in their philosophies and programs that it really doesn't make much difference which one is in power. And that, it is alleged, is a bad thing.

For a really meaningful election, runs the argument, the people should have a choice between two clearly different philosophies and programs—and candidates. That, it is alleged, would be a good thing.

Carried to its logical—actually, its illogical—extreme, this means that in every presidential election Americans ought to be offered a choice between a right-wing fascist and a left-wing Communist.

This, of course, is ridiculous. In fact, a choice between two different brands of totalitarianism would itself be a case of Tweedledee and Tweedledee, a "choice" between two essentially similar evils.

Yet we need only recall the election of 1964 to realize that when Americans are indeed offered "a choice, not an echo," they will choose the candidate who appears the more moderate, who stands closest to the political center. It is at its peril that a party nominates a candidate too far out of the mainstream.

In 1964, what to do about Vietnam was the overriding issue. Americans emphatically rejected the candidate who advocated a hard line and overwhelmingly favored the candidate who promised no military involvement in Vietnam and a continued forging of a "Great Society" of social progress at home.

Never mind that the winner eventually adopted the very war policies that were discredited at the polls. Americans were given the appearance of a clear choice, and acting on that appearance they chose the moderate.

There is an analogy in the astronomical phenomenon of double stars, in which two bodies revolve around a common center of gravity at the same time as they influence each other.

In politics, the center of gravity is the mass of people, and the major parties, if they would be major and not maverick, splinter parties, cannot stray too far from the pull of that center.

It is true that the center may change. In this century, the American political center has registered a slow shift toward the left. But the "law of political gravitation" still holds.

It is also true that in a time of deep national crisis, as in the Depression year of 1932, the American people demand a man who offers them new directions and new hope. They do not want a Tweedledee when the policies of a Tweedledee have failed.

It remains to be seen whether 1972 is such a year. Much of the momentum behind the leading contender for the Democratic nomination, Sen. George McGovern, is said to be because of his different, if not radical, approach to the whole range of problems confronting the nation—ending the Vietnam war, reforming the tax laws, curing poverty.

His call for fundamental changes has supposedly struck a responsive chord in the hearts of many disillusioned, dissatisfied, bewildered Americans.

But already McGovern is under pressure to moderate his positions lest he alienate not only the powers that be in his own party but large sections of the electorate. As this process develops, President Nixon also will feel pressure from some Republicans to modify his programs to counteract the appeal of his opponent.

Both parties, however, and both candidates, whoever they may be, will be seeking out the center during the election, for the center is where the votes come from.

If this be Tweedledee and Tweedledum, make the most of it. But in politics as in celestial mechanics, anything else would be chaos.

By JOHN BRODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — He had all the old-fashioned Japanese virtues: He used to beat his wife, enjoyed the company of geisha girls and adored soaking in a hot tub.

Eisaku Sato, 71, had four months to go as prime minister of Japan. Given his political skill, he might have been able to go to the end of his record-breaking term of nearly eight years and, perhaps, beyond. He was the strong man of contemporary Japanese politics.

But the problems were piling up. He had come to the brink of a political and diplomatic gap he could not easily bridge.

Yet, when he resigned Saturday, he still was in a position to influence the choice of his successor and, he hoped, of the policies he favored.

Sato's accomplishments were solid and, to the Japanese, satisfying. He restored tattered Japanese-South Korean relations, got back the Bonin Islands and Okinawa from the United States and presided over a prospering economy.

Also during his time, Japan was host to the summer and winter Olympics and staged a financially successful Expo 70 in Osaka. Sato created history by making it possible for a Japanese emperor, Hirohito, to make his first trip abroad.

Less than a month before announcing his resignation, he helped arrange another imperial first—a visit by Hirohito to the United States.

Sato had his troubles. The mass circulation press, many intellectuals and the left wing subjected him to unrelenting attack. They thought him too conservative and hated him for supporting the United States in Vietnam.

The Americans, whom he had befriended, also gave him a hard time. They helped create the political and economic gaps which finally swallowed him up.

First there were the quarrels over Japanese textile exports to the United States. They embittered U.S.-Japanese relations and the personal ones between Sato and President Nixon.

Then came Nixon's decision, announced in July 1971, to go to China. Sato had backed America's China containment policy to the hilt. When the about-face came, he was not consulted.

After that, Nixon's imposition of surcharges on Japanese imports, followed by the forced revaluation of the yen, drove the two countries farther apart. The chill lingered into 1972, to be relieved somewhat by Henry A. Kissinger's June mission of conciliation.

Confronted by the urgent need to do something about the international economic situation, for which Japan largely was being blamed, Sato's aides suggested to Nixon's chief adviser an agreement to restore order in U.S.-Japan trade. But it was too late for Sato to serve as architect of whatever new structure might arise.

If the gap with the United States was wide, it was limitless with the People's Republic of China. Clearly, following Nixon's trip to Peking, something had to give in Chinese-Japanese relations. The opposition and prominent members of his own party clamored for diplomatic recognition.

Sato was willing; Peking wasn't, not at least, as long as Sato remained prime minister. Try though he did, he could not get an invitation to Peking. Others would have to break the ground. He resigned early—he could have hung on until October—to give his successor a head start.

As a youth, Sato had a passion for card playing, horse racing and mahjong. His wife, Hiroko, disclosed in a 1969 interview that he used to beat her.

She gave another interview—with his consent—the other day: The prime minister is no conversationalist, sits playing solitaire during dinner, submerges in his bath for long periods, practices golf in his bedroom, watches his weight and prays periodically before the family Buddhist shrine.

No matter how grave the problems of office, Sato kept a stolid front at home. But, like other Japanese romantics, he could weep in public at moments of great significance. He brushed away the tears when Okinawa was returned to Japan on June 15.

That was regarded as the high point of his career, but there was another less widely known—the passage of the 1969 universities control bill, which brought rioting student leftists under greater control.

He attached so much importance to this because, first, he stood for the status quo and, second, he hated to see Japan's culture being destroyed.

They were the feelings of an older Japanese generation, the one named Meiji, after the emperor who brought Japan into the modern world a century ago. These thoughts were valid during the 1960s when he ruled. They were out of date in the 1970s.

Word To Hanoi: Moscow Is First

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Leonid Brezhnev has told Hanoi bluntly Russia's national interests come ahead of Moscow's duty to aid North Vietnam.
He advised Hanoi the time has come to be flexible and to zig instead of zag.
He said that Russia could best serve the interests of world communism by building a strong Communist society in the U.S.S.R. and by taking international steps in cooperation with non-Communist countries to insure that Russia will not be militarily endangered.

"What in fact are the most profound, vital interests of our people in the sphere of international life," said Vadim Zagladin, speaking for Brezhnev. "They consist primarily in a news commentary, in which he was really guaranteeing peace for our state and peaceful conditions for its development and for the building of Soviet society. They consist in insuring reliable security for our country and in guaranteeing the inviolability of what the Soviet people are creating..."

He notes that Soviet foreign policy is determined in Moscow and not by foreign governments (neither in Hanoi nor the West) and that the Soviet Union is fully able itself without comment from North Vietnam or other lands to determine what is best in the interests of Russia and world communism.

Brezhnev, through Zagladin, asserts strongly that it would serve no purpose for Russia to respond to President Nixon's toughness in North Vietnam by increased toughness from Moscow. That would not be wise, averred Brezhnev because Soviet successes to date have been a result of flexibility not rigid robotlike responses.

He told the North Vietnamese that their own successes in the past also have come from cleverly combining military political and diplomatic techniques. He said that at present however the North Vietnamese leaders were taking the short-run view in resorting to military force alone and in asking the Soviet Union to act in the same unimaginative way.

As noted above, Brezhnev used as his spokesman Vadim Zagladin deputy chief of the Soviet Union Communist Party Central Committee's International Department.

He broadcast the message to Hanoi and to Communist parties through the world in the peculiar way the Communist leaders have of moving obliquely against those fellow communists with whom they quarrel. While the means for sending the message was indirect, the words were quite clear — unusually clear for Communist messages — and exceedingly blunt.

This Soviet response came in answer to a strong demand by the North Vietnamese that the U.S.S.R. step more vigorously in the Vietnam war to halt the United States.

Hanoi asserted the struggle of one Communist country is the struggle of all and that each local struggle is an inescapable part of the world revolution. Hanoi accused Moscow of setting its own selfish national interests against the interests of the world revolution, which, Hanoi said, requires relentless attacks against the United States in order to force Washington to take one step backward after another.

These Soviet statements should not be interpreted to mean that Moscow will not continue to probe and poke into the world's unsettled areas in an effort to use Soviet-aided local military undergrounds for its own purpose. It should not be concluded either that Moscow will no longer assist North Vietnam in its attempts to take over the South. What these Russian words do clearly is that, in the final analysis, the Soviet Union does not at this time want a showdown with the United States.

Ann Landers: Can't Understand Why People Put Themselves Out For Pets

Dear Ann Landers: I'm middle-aged, middle-class, born and raised in a small town, but now I live in Cincinnati. I'm what you'd call Mrs. Middle America.
My husband and I live in a quadrangle. There are eight families in this compound and six of them have dogs. We do not. Neither my husband nor I had a dog when we were children. Perhaps this explains my ignorance, but I can't figure out why people go to so much trouble, not to mention the expense.

During the winter our neighbors slog through the snow in below-zero weather to walk their mutts. All summer, I see these same idiots driving pets to the veterinarians for grooming and shots. When a dog is sick it's just like a child. They stay up all night to give the animal medicine.

One of our neighbors went to the expense of having her dog driven to Florida because he had ear trouble and couldn't fly. That dog had a mink coat and hat. Fifty million Americans can't be crazy. What's the answer? Why do the bother?—The Rugs In My Home Are Beautiful.

Hello Beautiful: Some behavioral authorities say that a dog offers middle-aged and older people permanent parenthood. No matter how old the dog gets he still needs to be fed, bathed, combed and petted. Children grow up and become independent (and often rebellious), but when a dog is trained he is obedient and respectful and he stays that way.

Best of all, when you come home from a hard day's work, some members of the family bark at you—but your dog wags his tail and lets you know he's glad you are home.

Dear Ann Landers: I know I speak for thousands of people across this great land of ours—and I hope you will be good enough to print my letter.

I am fed up with nosey switchboard operators who make a hobby of listening in on private telephone calls. It so happens that I am not leading a double life, I have nothing to hide, and I have never said anything on the phone that I wish I hadn't. All the same, it's pretty darned annoying to know that some nosey broad can amuse herself by listening in on my personal conversations.

Since everyone reads your column I hope you will print this letter. Those operators who are guilty will know I mean them and maybe they will lay off—over Of Privacy.

Dear Lover: Most switchboard operators need two more hands, four more ears and another mouth to keep up with a demanding job. They couldn't care less about private conversations. Granted, there might be one or two Nosey Nora's in the crowd, but the vast majority of switchboard operators are too busy for eavesdropping.

Dear Ann Landers: You have said in your column that divorced children have no right to expect their parents to take care of them indefinitely—that a temporary "helping hand" is O.K. but moving in and acting like an adolescent after a marriage collapses is for the birds. What about a mother-in-law who at the age of 48 files for divorce and wants to move in with her son and his wife?

I like my mother-in-law very much and in my opinion she should have left her husband years ago, but I don't want her living with us. My husband has told me the decision is mine—he'll agree to anything I decide. This means I have to accept full responsibility for a negative answer. What should I do?—Scardy Kat

Dear Kat: Say no on the grounds that she should have her own place—even if it's a rented room—where SHE can be boss.

MARBELLA, Spain — This is the Costa del Sol — the Sunny Coast! Less than 15 years ago, the area was still a thinly populated region, its beaches deserted. . . . the non-Spanish population then consisted mainly of retired British military men and their wives. . . . Then, about ten years ago, a new airport was built in Malaga and the world discovered the Costa del Sol. . . . In a little over a decade, it has gone from a tiny, unpretentious, adobe fishing hamlet—actually the fishermen's quarter of Malaga—to a bustling boom town that's a mixture of Copenhagen, Stockholm, a good measure of Miami and Provincetown, and just a touch of Madrid. . . . How about being one of the first to make your plans to visit "the Sunny Coast"?

"THIS IS GOD'S COUNTRY!"

Lovely, verdant, fresh, ruggedly beautiful — a vacationer's paradise — smog-free, unpolluted, away from noisy crowds.

That's what many consider God's kind of place.

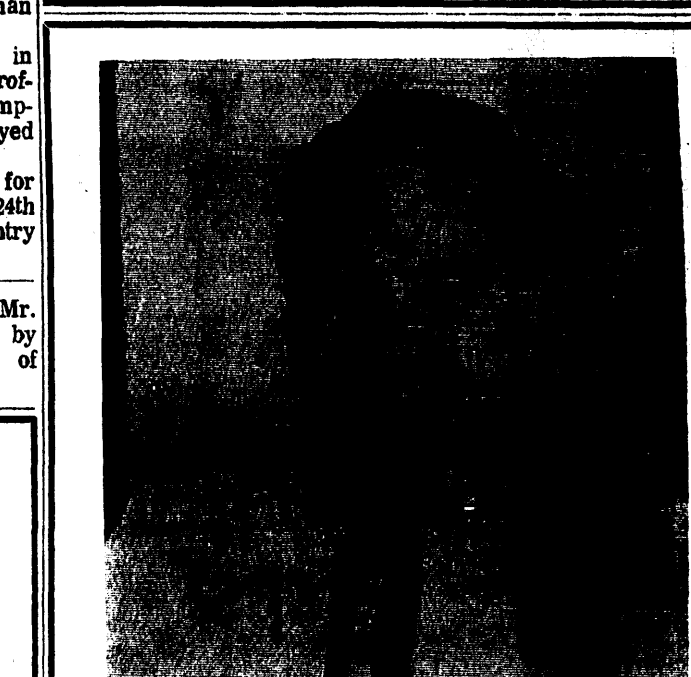

But actually God lives wherever people are, in city ghetto, crowded business district, and populated suburb.

His country is the middle of humanity where men live and work and play.

In Christ God "was made flesh, and dwelt among us."

Find God with us in worship every Sunday.

Subject to the foregoing maximum interest rate, bidders may name the interest rate or rates for each block of bonds or the entire issue in multiples of 1/10th of 1 percent or 1/8th of 1 percent. Bidder shall state in percent the net interest cost of its bid on its bid proposal.

Farmers healthiest
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Farmers are the healthiest people in America, according to a survey by the California Farm Bureau.

The nationwide study reported people on farms and in other rural areas are generally healthier, and that residents of the North Central and Midwest parts of the country had less sick days than those in the South, West or Northeast.

The average worker, the survey said, misses two weeks of work each year because of illness. Men are healthier than women and the upper income classes are healthier than lower income groups, it said.

Takes Fight For Parole Reform To Jaycee Meet

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A lean, dark-eyed federal prisoner, out on the streets temporarily for only the second time in 11 years, took his fight for parole reform to the U.S. Jaycees' convention Monday, but didn't get to deliver his speech.

H. Lee White, was prepared to talk about "bureau-rats" who run prisons and about all manner of prison inhumanity.

But since he only had a few minutes before a seminar on crime and corrections, White pleaded passionately for support of legislation to liberalize the mandatory release program for federal prisoners.

White wanted to take the issue before the full assembly of some 17,000 Jaycees, but was told he could not because of by-laws governing convention program planning.

Despite his frustration over not getting to present the issue as he wanted, the 42-year-old White's efforts have not been lost on the Jaycees.

His efforts as a member of the "Trailblazers" Jaycees chapter in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., and those of Carl Roberts of the "Egyptians" chapter in the prison at Marion, Ill., have prompted the informal support of the national organization.

In response to the two-year efforts of the Trailblazers and the Egyptians, said Gary Hill, Jaycee consultant on crime and corrections, local chapters will mount a letter-writing campaign in support of a section of a parole-reform bill dealing with mandatory release programs.

The bill, now in the U.S. House Judiciary Committee, includes a section that would prevent a prisoner from forfeiting sentence time spent under parole supervision if he is returned to prison for a parole violation such as getting drunk or getting married without notifying authorities.

Hill said the effort would involve seeking 100,000 letters of support to congressmen before Jan. 1, as well as attempting to use the lobbyists of such groups as the American Bar Association and the League of Women voters to gain support of the bill.

Local chapter referendums this summer also could give the effort the weight of formal policy of the national organization.

The mandatory release program permits a federal prisoner to earn "good time" for work and good conduct and then gain release under supervision after serving two-thirds sentence. As the law stands, a prisoner loses all the time he spends under parole supervision if he is returned to prison for a parole violation.

Mayors Told Remedies For City Programs

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey proposed Tuesday that mayors get a role in the federal budget process. George McGovern promised to restore faith in government. Edmund S. Muskie said President Nixon's foreign policy deserves relief for the cities.

The three senators, all seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, addressed the mayors and representatives of 350 cities at the U.S. Conference of Mayors annual meeting.

The candidates outlined their remedies for city problems to an audience that contained a number of mayors critical of them for not addressing urban problems more frequently.

On his first campaign swing since he dropped out of the primaries, Muskie of Maine led off with criticism of Nixon's foreign policy.

In his prepared remarks, Muskie said, "It is ironic that our national government, which insists on winning, or creating the illusion of winning, a war 10,000 miles away, seems willing to surrender our nation's cities without a struggle."

He said that despite Nixon's strategic arms limitation agreements with the Soviet Union, the Pentagon budget requests are "already up $13 billion from what was appropriated last year."

These developments, Muskie said, "put the hopes for relief of our cities just that much farther away."

In his prepared text, Humphrey of Minnesota proposed that local, state and county officials be included in the federal government's budget process through a system of budget hearings around the country by the federal Office of Management and Budget and major departments of the federal government.

"Right now, mayors and city officials, supervisors, city managers, county officials, governors and the people are closed out of the federal government's budget processes," Humphrey said.

"Decisions are made every day about your city by faceless bureaucrats in Washington. You are seldom consulted. Your true needs are often ignored. You and the people end up living with decisions you had no part in making,"

Use Pretty Hankies To Create Heirlooms

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—We recently found a 10x24-inch picture we want to take to a 50th high school class reunion. We would like to frame it, but it has been rolled up so long that it cracks every time we try to unroll it. Does anyone know of any way it can be softened? We do not want to damage the picture — MRS. G. P.

DEAR POLLY—Harriet could make a bedspread with her overabundance of lovely handkerchiefs as I am now doing. I bought a king-sized, gold-colored bedsheet and then arranged my hankies as to size and placed them, a row at a time, on the sheet. They were first pinned in place and then I used different embroidery stitches to applique each one in place. I am using smaller handkerchiefs to make a ruffle for the edges. — MARY P.

And with a few fine stitches snipped
A wedding hankie be.

And if perchance it is a boy
Some day he will surely wed.
Then to his bride he can present
The hankie once worn on his head." — KATIE M.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with those people who are insulted when a guest uses catsup or salt on a dish before tasting it. If a guest in my home enjoys horseradish on chocolate mousse, I just hope I have a nice fresh jar of horseradish. — LARUE

Morgan Fair To Feature Flower Show

An open show in floriculture will again be offered at the 1972 Morgan County Fair. Classes will be open to all adults as well as juniors.

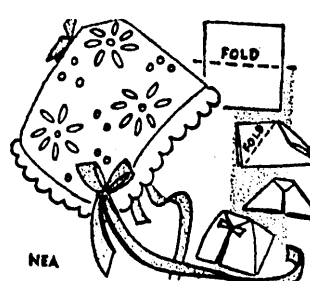

The open show superintendents report that thirteen classes will be offered. There will be classes in petunias, marigolds, zinnias, gladioli, roses, and dahlias. There will also be a class called Kitchen Charm, using whole fruit or vegetables and flowers in a kitchen utensil. Another special class will be called The Whole Town's Talking, an arrangement suitable for an informal party. Entry Hall arrangements and Dining Table arrangements will also be classes offered.

Entries in the open show flower classes close Friday, June 30. Entries must be in place by 9 a.m., July 1. Each exhibitor must furnish a suitable container and should have grown the flowers used.

Entry blanks may be obtained at the Fair office. Fair premium books may be obtained at the Fair office or the Co-operative Extension building.

Further information can be obtained from the open flower show superintendents: Mrs. George Trull, Mrs. Clyde York, Mrs. Elmer Kleinschmidt, Mrs. Norman McQueen and Mrs. Ronald York.

West Berlin lies 110 miles inside East Germany.

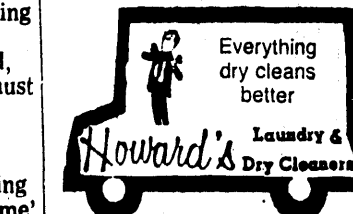

DEAR POLLY—Harriet could use some of those many pretty handkerchiefs to make unusual magic hankie bonnets to give to new babies. Use a lace hanky if you have one or you could even edge a 13-inch square of tricot with lace. Fold in half. Take a corner at the fold edge and bring it down to the open edge to form a point. Do likewise on the other side. Fold the peaked edge down one to two inches and tack. Tack a small ribbon bow on here. Form a pleat at the center back. Make one-eighth-inch pleats at pointed edge on the side and stitch ribbon ties. All stitching should be done by hand for easy removal later. Enclose the following poem with such a gift:

"I am just a little hankie
As square as square can be.
But with a little stitch or two
A bonnet I will be.
I'll be worn home from the hospital

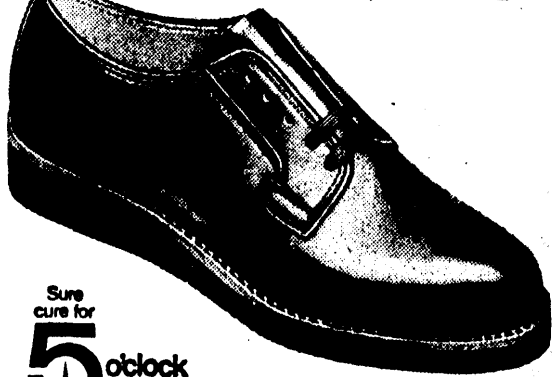

Or on my christening day
And after that be neatly pressed
And carefully put away.
Then on that fateful wedding day,
So we've always been told,
The well-dressed bride must wear
Something that is old.

So what could be more fitting
Than to look up 'little old me'

Lucchesi Status Is Under Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ATLANTA (AP) — Frank Lucchesi's status as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies is under review.

General Manager Paul Owens is traveling with the Phillies on their current road trip in an effort to fix the responsibility for 26 defeats in the last 31 games. The club has lost its last six after losing streaks of 11 and 9 games.

"Call it an exploratory trip," said Owens, who replaced John Quinn as the Phillies' general manager June 3. "It's not secret I'm not satisfied with this ball club. It's getting worse and worse. I intend to find out the reason—my own way."

Owens said he'll finish the trip, which has series with Atlanta, Montreal and Chicago remaining before the team returns home June 26.

"I'll know by then," Owens declared Monday night after the opening game with Atlanta was rained out.

"I know we're not pennant contenders, but we ought to be able to stay close to .500," he said.

Owens says that what annoys him most is the players' lackadaisical manner on the field. "We act like we're beaten before we start," he said. "In Sunday's game in Houston, we made more mistakes in the first three innings than I've seen all season."

Owens admitted he is concerned by reports that Lucchesi has lost control of the team. "Frank and I have been friends for a long time and we each spent 20 years battling up through the ranks, but like I told him on Sunday, friendship doesn't mean a thing in something like this. It's business—the business of trying to find out why the team is losing so often."

Owens was asked if he was thinking of bringing in Jim Bunning from Reading to manage the Phillies.

"I don't know what kind of manager Bunning is," Owens hedged. "Bunning, a star pitcher with Detroit, Pittsburgh and the Phillies before his retirement last year, is in his first season as manager of the Reading Phillies in the Class AA eastern League."

Owens said he wasn't impressed with the fines Lucchesi leveled against eight players for breaking curfew in Houston after Saturday night's game. "Most of the guys caught were milk shake drinkers who present no morale problems," Owens said. "The players were fined $100 each for being in the motel restaurant and missing bed check."

"That's not my idea of getting tough," Owens said. "The Phillies are expected to make a number of player changes shortly."

Owens said something is drastically wrong and he intends to find out where the responsibility belongs and then take action.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock raced home with the winning run in the 10th inning as the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the San Diego Padres 5-4 in a National League baseball game Tuesday night.

Brock singled with one out in the 10th and moved up on Ted Sizemore's hit. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch by reliever Gary Ross and then Brock carried home the deciding run when Derrell Thomas fumbled Joe Torre's grounder for an error.

Rookie Jerry Morales tied the score for the Padres in the eighth inning with a two-run homer against Rick Wise after a leadoff single by pinch hitter Curt Blefary.

The Cards ganged up on ex-teammate Fred Norman for three runs and seven hits in the first three innings. Ted Simmons' leadoff triple triggered a two-run rally in the second.

St. Louis added another in the third on singles by Donn Clendenon, Torre and Matly Alou.

The Padres picked up a pair of runs in the fourth when Fred Stanley doubled and Leron Lee followed with a triple. Nate Colbert's single brought Lee home.

The Cards made it 4-2, scoring a run on two errors in the seventh before Morales' homer tied it up and sent the game into extra innings.

Boston's other run came on Harper's 10th homer of the season in the fifth inning.

Hand, 4-4, received late-inning relief help from Paul Lindblad and Horacio Pina, who recorded his ninth save. Pina got out the last two Boston batters after the Red Sox put two men on.

Texas widened its advantage on Jones' blast and added two insurance runs in the seventh on a double by Toby Harrah and a bases-loaded single by Mincher.

Streaking Chicago Routs Giants 15-8

CHICAGO (AP) — Randy Hundley's grand slam homer spiced a seven-run first inning, and a five-run fourth swept the Chicago Cubs to their seventh straight National League victory, a 15-8 rout of the San Francisco Giants Tuesday.

Hundley also drove in a fifth run with a single in the fourth. The Cubs 18-hit attack also included a two-run homer by Ron Santo in the sixth and a home run by Billy Williams in the seventh.

The roof fell in on Giant starter Don Carrithers, 2-4, in the first inning of the baseball game after the Cubs filed an official protest in a two-run Giant first. A grounder by Willie McCovey struck second base umpire John Kibler and resulted in McCovey being thrown out at first. The umpires, after a long huddle, ruled the ball dead after hitting Kibler and gave McCovey an infield hit.

Jim Hickman of Chicago slammed four straight singles in his first four trips.

Garry Maddox slammed a three-run homer in the third as the Giants made their last real bid, trimming the Cub lead to 7-6.

Gibson May Get Chance Tonight

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bullet Bob Gibson is back on the beam but he has run into uncooperative elements in his quest of another 20-victory season with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 36-year-old Gibson, whose record May 15 dropped to a career low of 0-5 in a 4-1 loss at Pittsburgh, has since battled back to win four straight and stand 4-5.

But twice in a row the hard-throwing right-hander has been foiled by rain in his attempt to become the Cards' all-time winningest pitcher with 211 victories.

On June 14, Gibson was leading 1-0 over the Los Angeles Dodgers with two out in the fourth inning when a thunderstorm struck at Busch Stadium and forced a delay of one hour and 26 minutes and eventual postponement of the baseball contest.

In his next start, Monday night, Gibson was facing San Diego Padres catcher Pat Corrales in the third inning of a scoreless battle when rain which had delayed the game began falling again.

The two storms obliterated two of the 6-foot-1 pitcher's chances to move toward his 20-victory target, but Manager Red Schoendienst indicated one lost start may be restored.

Depending on the resiliency in the 14-season star's arm, he may be called on again Wednesday night when the Cards face the Padres in the windup to an abbreviated series.

"It depends on how he feels," Schoendienst said, "but he's only pitched five innings in the last 10 days. He's awfully eager to be throwing."

Gibson started the campaign with a one-run loss to Philadelphia and suffered two setbacks.

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joe DiMaggio makes a good witness, maybe the perfect one. He has no axe to grind.

He lived under the present reserve clause 16 years with the New York Yankees and had his salary battles with the front office the same as anybody else so he doesn't figure to be against the players.

He has no official connection with baseball now and you don't see any of the owners knocking his door down to employ him so you can't put him away as any kind of "owners' man" either.

Yet, Joe DiMaggio feels the Supreme Court made the right call. "I'm happy the Court ruled in favor of baseball," he says. "Why? Simply because I wouldn't care to see any one club corral all or most of the playing talent. I don't think that would be right, and I'm sure in the long run it would have to hurt baseball."

"You take what's happening in Japan now. I'm talking about the Tokyo Giants. They win every year. It's pretty simple. They've got the money; they get all the talent. I like our rules, the draft and all that, much better."

In essence, Joe DiMaggio is right. That happens to be the way I feel, anyway.

Had the Supreme Court gone the other way and upheld Curt Flood's challenge of the reserve clause, I don't necessarily think complete chaos would have followed, but I'm reasonably sure there would have been some disorder, and if there is one thing baseball doesn't need right now it's any more disorder.

I have never heard a single player ever say he felt the reserve clause should be eliminated completely. Most say they feel it should be revised some way.

But in what way? Ah, there's the rub!

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who wrote the opinion upholding the controversial clause, went back and noted the Supreme Court had granted baseball antitrust exemption twice before during the past 50 years.

Blackmun made a special point of saying this exemption "rests on a recognition and an acceptance of baseball's unique characteristics and needs." He also said the Court was reluctant to overturn those earlier decisions "when Congress, by its positive inaction, has allowed those decisions to stand for so long and, far beyond mere inference and implication, has clearly evinced a desire not to disapprove them legislatively."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger agreed with Blackmun's ruling in an opinion of his own but said he had "grave reservations." He feels it is time Congress acts "to solve this problem."

Naturally, Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Major League Players' Association, jumped on that and said he felt "confident that the Congress will accept the Court's clear indication to act in this matter."

For one thing, the Court cannot instruct Congress to act, it can merely suggest, and there certainly is no guarantee Congress ever will.

The only one who ever really keeps urging it to is Marvin Miller. For its part, the general public seems satisfied with the way things are in baseball or simply doesn't care.

Which leaves only baseball's hierarchy headed by Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of the game.

Bowie Kuhn, my friends, is a very relieved customer today. So are a number of other baseball people who kept worrying the Supreme Court would go the other way.

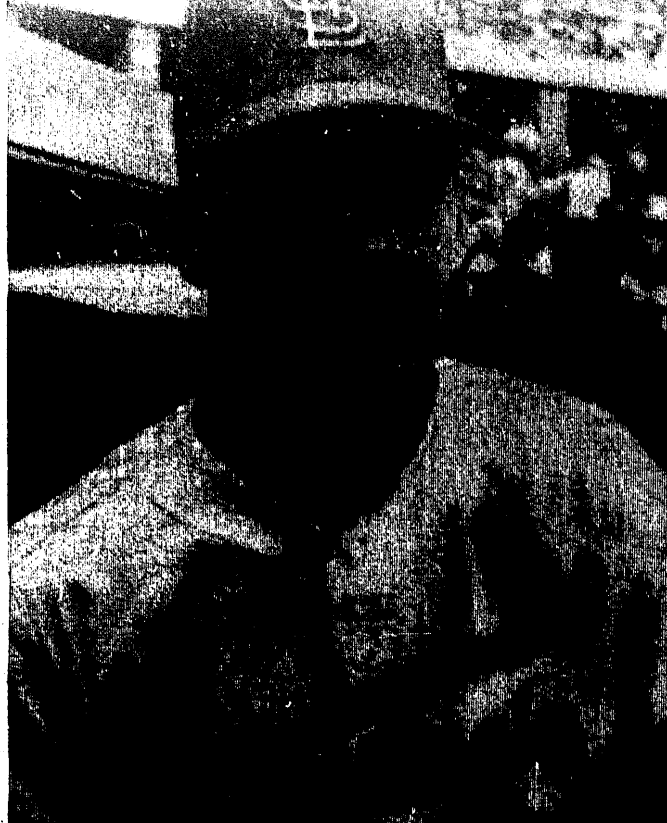

I'm pleased it didn't because if I want to see Hank Aaron, Johnny Bench, Roberto Clemente, Billy Williams, Tom Seaver, Bob Gibson, Joe Torre, Pete Rose, Willie Mays, Sam McDowell and Ferguson Jenkins all on the same team I'll go to the All-Star Game.

Which brings me back to Joe DiMaggio.

"Under the present setup," he says, "I still think a ballplayer can make a pretty decent living out there, reserve clause and all."

Of course he can. So can the owners, and I mean ALL of them, even those who cry. They should quit crying. So should the players.

I'm with Joe DiMaggio. I'm glad the Court ruled the way it did.

ST. LOUIS: Catcher Ted Simmons, shown in file photo, of the St. Louis Cardinals, said Monday he would seek the support of the major league baseball players' union for a court challenge of baseball's renewal clause. Simmons revealed his plan shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that professional baseball is immune from the anti-trust law in rejecting Curt Flood's challenge of the controversial reserve clause. ## Lonborg Whips White Sox, Wood In 7-1 Verdict

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Lonborg outdueled Chicago's Wilbur Wood and pitched the Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-1 American League baseball victory over the White Sox Tuesday night.

Lonborg, 4-3, scattered nine hits for the victory. It was only the second loss in 12 career decisions against the Brewers for Wood, now 11-5 for the season. The White Sox' knuckleballer had not lost to the Brewers since July 7, 1970.

Ron Theobald and Dave May each had three hits for the Brewers.

Milwaukee got all the runs it needed in the first two innings. Theobald led off with a double, went to third on a bunt single by May and scored on a double play. Bob Heise doubled in the second and scored on a single by Rick Auerbach for the second run.

Milwaukee added another on three straight hits in the sixth inning and then wrapped it up with four more runs in the eighth.

Investing Of Income Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional prodding, the Treasury is studying a plan to reward taxpayers who agree to lend the government the extra-large refunds they expect to get next year from income-tax withholding.

The idea is not so much to ease the government's borrowing problems as to head off a surge of inflation when taxpayers suddenly collect an estimated $8 billion in spendable funds.

The proposal is to offer a choice to taxpayers whose 1972 returns show a refund coming: either take the cash, or accept a bond that pays better interest than the 5.5-per-cent yield the ordinary seven-year government Series E. Bond provides.

Withholding has been a headache for two years for wage-earners and the Treasury alike. In 1969, the rate was set too low, and many taxpayers found that, when they filed their returns this year, they owed substantial amounts.

In an effort to correct this, Congress revised the withholding rate late last year, on Treasury recommendations, but overcompensated.

So, there is the prospect that taxpayers, with money taken out of their paychecks that the government would prefer to leave in the spending stream, will have big refunds coming in early 1973. That is when administration economists expect the economy to be more robust—and more inflation-prone.

In its report on the pending bill to extend the national debt ceiling, the House Ways and Means Committee disclosed that the prospect of a special-incentive savings bond has been discussed with the Treasury.

The committee said the Treasury "has agreed to look into both the desirability and practicality of the matter."

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who brought the matter up in closed committee sessions with Treasury officials, said, "They had better do something—if this $8 billion spins out all of a sudden it could send inflation up four or five points."

One way to increase the yield on the securities, Vanik suggested, would be to issue predated E. Bonds, so that a holder would not have to wait a full seven years before collecting the entire face value of the bond, which is sold at a discount.

Ban On Wagering

CHICAGO (AP) — In a crackdown on irregularities in thoroughbred and harness horse racing, the Illinois Racing Board ordered a ban Tuesday on gimmick wagering.

Tracks that listed their intentions to use such selective betting pools as the Trifecta, Big Q, Quinella, Perfecta, and Exacta when they were granted racing dates will be allowed to do so this year.

But from then on, said the board, only the traditional daily double will be permitted. "We phased out various gimmicks before, then went back and the mice started to come out," said Alexander MacArthur, board chairman. "I am troubled with the posture of our racing and I am dissatisfied. I've had occasion to find electric whips and there are irregularities in harness racing."

"Gimmick races bring out all the sharpies," he added. "All irregularities date back to them."

Jack Weaver, who handles public relations for Cahokia Downs in East St. Louis, said he is certain the track's dates of Aug. 9 to Nov. 18, when granted, included Quinella betting on the 5th and 7th races and a Perfecta on the 9th.

"Banning these next year will have a far reaching effect on revenue," he said. Quinella betting involves backing the first two finishers, not precisely in order. A Perfecta winner must pick the first two in order.

MacArthur said he is concerned with harness racing irregularities. "I know what it takes to pass on curves or the straightaways," he said. "I'm going to see that there is competitive racing. I want every driver out there trying."

He said closed circuit TV cameras will be installed at the entrance and exit of paddocks "and only the people entitled to be there will be there."

He said stewards at thoroughbred tracks "want the jockey rooms tightened up—with unauthorized persons kept out."

Also we want to restore identification services so all characteristics of an animal will be known" to make certain there are no ringers in a race.

"There are a number of ringers racing across the country," he said. "We haven't detected any in Illinois so far."

McGovern, Daley Confer Tuesday In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern conferred privately Tuesday with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley about Illinois' 92 uncommitted delegates to the Democratic National Convention, but McGovern said afterwards he did not get the votes.

McGovern told newsmen that Daley said he intends to go to the Miami Beach convention with his delegates uncommitted and decide at that time who to support on the first ballot.

The meeting took place during the U.S. Conference of Mayors here. McGovern has 18 Illinois delegates committed to him, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine has 60, and the rest are uncommitted.

McGovern said Daley "said he wanted me to know that he was not part of any stop McGovern movement. He brought it up himself."

The South Dakota senator added that he does not think Daley considers him too radical a candidate for the party.

McGovern, trying to drum up enough support to win the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot at the convention starting July 8, faces considerable opposition among party leaders who have said his nomination would assure a Republican victory next November.

McGovern said Daley told him, "The party has to get united if we expect to defeat Nixon next fall."

McGovern said Daley also complimented the senator's widespread grass-roots campaign organization that he boosted him into the front-running spot for the nomination.

McGovern said he told Daley that if he gets the nomination "we have the kind of an organization that could help Democrats all over the country," presumably referring to Daley-backed candidates in Illinois.

McGovern also conferred with Louisiana delegates in an attempt to get their support. Thirty-one members of the Louisiana delegation to the convention are uncommitted, with nine pledged to McGovern and three to Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

He also met with several other mayors, soliciting their support. The Louisiana delegates were divided by race, and McGovern said that was at the request of a coalition of 13 blacks who are expected to vote for the same Democratic presidential candidate at the convention.

CARBON MONOXIDE ALSO PRODUCED BY CHLOROPHYLL

ARGONNE, Ill. (AP) — Chlorophyll—the stuff that makes grass green—produces large amounts of carbon monoxide, an odorless gas which can be fatal, scientists at Argonne National Laboratory have found.

But the homeowner mowing his lawn doesn't have anything to worry about, according to the scientists, unless he's planning to fill a giant room full of decaying grass.

Chlorophyll is essential to photosynthesis, the process by which plants use sunlight to manufacture carbohydrates.

The scientists estimate that the naturally occurring chlorophyll produces 100 million tons of the gas throughout the world each year. This compares with an estimated 270 million tons produced by man-made sources, such as automobiles and factories.

The research at the Atomic Energy Commission facility here is designed to determine the total amount of carbon monoxide in the atmosphere as a step toward controlling it.

The work is sponsored by the Coordinating Research Council, jointly directed by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Automobile Manufacturers Association and the American Petroleum Institute.

The two-year Argonne project, conducted by Dr. Henry L. Crespi and his associates, found that chlorophyll produces atmospheric carbon monoxide in two ways.

The greater part of the natural production takes place when plants and fresh and salt water algae decay and die. This is estimated to be responsible for 60 million tons of carbon monoxide annually.

The production of chlorophyll in certain kinds of fresh water algae also produces the gas.

In everyday terms, Crespi said, the homeowner who has an acre of lawn to mow cuts about 1,000 pounds of grass every two weeks. This amounts to about five pounds of chlorophyll.

As the grass dies, the decaying chlorophyll emits one-sixteenth of a pound of carbon monoxide, "or about the same as burning one-twelfth of a gallon of gas in a car without emission controls," Crespi said.

The scientist said in an interview there is no danger from natural sources of carbon monoxide to human health. "It would take a tremendous room full of decaying vegetation in order to build up anything like toxic or lethal levels," he said.

Dominick offered the amendment which was carried with votes of Republican and Southern Democratic senators.

Dominick said that, in most cases, states can handle the program better. In any case, he said, his proposal simply leaves it up to the secretary of health, education and welfare to choose between the states and local sponsors.

But Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., chief sponsor of the bill, said that HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson already had made it clear he favors the states.

Mondale declared the amendment would have a disastrous effect on a major principle of his measure—that child-care programs should be controlled locally and with a large measure of parental participation.

Care under the program would be free for children of poverty-level families; low- and middle-income families would pay part of the cost, and well-off families could use the day-care centers by paying the full cost.

The bill's sponsors emphasized that care under the program would not be simply custodial. The centers would provide many services, including educational, nutritional, medical and social.

Mondale said the program would offer, in addition to day care facilities, part-day services like Head Start, prenatal service, in-home tutoring, and child development classes for parents and prospective parents.

The new program would take over the present Head Start services developed as part of the antipoverty effort.

Sent To Ogilvie

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate Tuesday sent to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie a change in the new implied consent law, effective July 1, to overcome vexing enforcement problems.

When the bill passed, police and sheriffs objected that intolerable burdens were put on them by some provisions of the law requiring suspected drunk drivers to take breath tests.

Strong complaints came about a requirement that authorities transport an alleged violator to a qualified person of his choosing for a second breath test that might be used to challenge the first required test.

State police had complained that, "We could possibly arrest a person in East St. Louis and have to take him to Chicago for the second test, because that's where he wants" to go.

The charges provide that the second test must be in the same county or, in the event the first county lacks a second testing point, in an adjacent county.

The implied consent law states that the driver of a motor vehicle in Illinois must consent to take two breath analysis tests to determine the alcoholic content of his blood if he is arrested on suspicion of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

The arrested driver may refuse to submit to either test, but his refusal may result in the suspension of his drivers' license for three months.

If the driver refuses to submit to the tests on his second arrest or on subsequent arrests within a five-year period, he may lose his license for six months.

Visitation will be after 2 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home. The family will meet friends there from 7-9 p.m. that evening.

Enos E. Lacy WINCHESTER — Funeral services for Enos E. Lacy will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at the Conrod Funeral Home with burial to be in the Glasgow cemetery.

Visitation will be after 2 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home. The family will meet friends there from 7-9 p.m. that evening.

Defeated by 49 to 36 was an amendment to Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, to cut back on the number of potential local sponsors of child-development projects from 2,000 to 1,200.

He sought to do this by making only groups in cities of 50,000 or more population eligible, instead of towns of 25,000 as the bill provided.

Nixon, last year, objected to provisions that would have authorized about 7,000 local sponsors by allowing groups in towns of 5,000 or more to qualify. He complained the plan for thousands of local sponsors was unworkable.

The bill's managers were overridden with 45-38 adoption of an amendment to permit the government to turn control of the new day-care projects over to the states.

As the bill was originally written it gave local sponsors such as school systems and churches the primary right to set up and run the day-care centers.

Dominick offered the amendment which was carried with votes of Republican and Southern Democratic senators.

Dominick said that, in most cases, states can handle the program better. In any case, he said, his proposal simply leaves it up to the secretary of health, education and welfare to choose between the states and local sponsors.

Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Tuesday that he will nominate Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, now the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, to be Army chief of staff.

He will replace Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 58, who is retiring July 3 with the rank of four-star general.

Meanwhile, Nixon also announced that he is reappointing Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, 60, for another two-year term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

No successor for Abrams in Saigon was announced. Nor was there any decision yet on when Abrams will be leaving his post in Vietnam.

Abrams, 57, is being nominated for a four-year term in the top Army post. A native of Springfield, Mass., he succeeded Westmoreland in the Vietnam post in July 1968.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Westmoreland will step down as Army chief of staff on June 30 and the vice chief of staff, Gen. Bruce Palmer, will be acting chief until Abrams returns and gets Senate confirmation.

Ziegler said that all the men involved in the military changes have carried out their responsibilities and commands "with great distinction." And, he said, Gen. Westmoreland will be appropriately honored in the next few weeks not only by the President but by the military.

Aides to Westmoreland said he has not decided on his retirement plans as yet but has indicated that he would not be interested in any overseas assignment. This presumably would rule out his undertaking any diplomatic mission of the sort often carried out by retired generals.

Ziegler said it was not unusual to reappoint a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and that Moorer's predecessor, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler had been reappointed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The law permits a two-year term for chairman, plus one two-year renewal.

The appointment of Abrams came as no surprise. It had been expected.

Both he and Westmoreland are West Pointers, both from the Class of 1936. Abrams started out in the cavalry, Westmoreland in the field artillery.

Ziegler said that the decision on when Abrams will leave Vietnam is "being worked out." And he said he expected to have information about a successor there "at a later time."

The new commander in Vietnam is expected to be Army Gen. Frederick Weyand, who has been Abrams' deputy for nearly two years.

Abrams may face some tough questioning when he is up before the Senate Armed Services Committee in confirmation hearings, because some senators have said they want to ask what was his role, if any, in unauthorized bombings in North Vietnam.

Air Force Gen. John D. Lavelle was relieved as 7th Air Force commander, and then retired, after Pentagon leaders learned that some U.S. bombers had struck targets which had not been approved.

Lavelle technically was subordinate to Abrams, although officials said that Abrams delegated the air war authority to his Air Force commander.

The announcement of the Army chief of staff change comes only 12 days before the expiration of Westmoreland's term. Rarely has a president waited this long to name a new service chief. Normally there is at least a couple of months lead time to permit a orderly changeover.

This time, officials have said, Nixon waited as long as possible because of the uncertain battlefield situation in Vietnam.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With a few notable exceptions, the economy seems to be following the script written by Republican planners. As the election approaches, that is, it is growing markedly more vigorous.

Whether this improvement can be translated into votes is another matter, because there is a world of difference between the nation's economy and an individual's view of his personal economy.

Statistically, the nation's economic indicators are high and pointing upward. Production, retail sales, the number of people with jobs, take-home pay and so on are rising.

The current condition could reasonably be called a boom except that nobody likes to use that word anymore, because it has a tendency to suggest the opposite—a bust.

But as the expansion grows, its imperfections become more obvious and, especially in a political sense, less acceptable. Prices and jobs are emotional issues that could swamp noteworthy accomplishments.

It is now unlikely that the jobless rate can be reduced to 5 per cent of the labor force by election time. And it is no more likely that the rise in the cost of living can be reduced to less than 4 per cent.

And so, while the economic scorecard shows about 15 indicators favorable to Republicans, the two pointers best known to voters are decidedly against them.

To some extent, this situation is due not only to imperfections in the economy but to defects in the script written months ago when administration spokesmen promised to reduce joblessness and inflation.

Not only were these promises made, they were repeated every time that monthly figures showed the accomplishment short of the goal.

Moreover, specific figures were given for each goal: joblessness of 4.5 per cent or less and inflation of less than 4 per cent on an annual basis. No success could be claimed in either area, therefore, until those figures were met. They haven't been attained and probably won't be.

Among many students of the economy there is serious doubt that those rates can ever be achieved again in a balanced economy.

The doubters claim that it is unrealistic to expect prices to remain stable while seeking full employment for workers with marginal skills.

As for inflation, the critics say that while it is theoretically possible to control prices, it is unrealistic to expect it to happen in light of today's social and political considerations.

Computers Now Prepared To Program Leisure Time

By WILLIAM MILLER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Computers, already handling bank statements, taxes, credit cards and other monthly bills, not to mention trading transactions on Wall Street, are now prepared to program leisure time.

"We have brought automation to the leisure time industry with the idea of merchandising it as a product itself," said Theodore H. Helweg, president of Ticketron, Inc., a $7 million plus computerized reservation service.

A subsidiary of Control Data, Ticketron currently has about 1,000 terminals around the country handling inventories of Broadway and off-Broadway plays, concerts, ballets, community attractions in major cities and professional and collegiate sporting events. The terminals are connected to one of two computer centers in New York and Los Angeles.

Recently, the three-year-old company expanded its operations to include reservations for Metroliner tickets on the Penn Central, lottery tickets for the state of New Jersey, off-track betting tickets, airline tickets, state campsite reservations, golf tee-off times and ski-lift reservations.

"We expanded from just spectator sports into participation type activities to spread the use of facilities over larger areas," said Helweg. An example would be Ticketron's efforts to influence greater distribution of campers over all available campsites in a specific area, instead of having long waiting lines at one or two popular ones.

Ticketron pumped out over 10 million tickets in 1971, and projects another 20 million plus will be sold this year. What Ticketron supplies is the actual ticket to the event, not a reservation where you have to stand in line at your destination to get the ticket.

Two Definite Directions
Helweg has two definite directions planned for Ticketron.

—More packaging of leisure time activities.

—A management information service to businesses as a byproduct of handling their inventory.

"We will do more and more packaging of the leisure time industry because the public wants less complication and standing in line," Helweg said. He noted that implementation of this might enable a person to buy a packaged evening including dinner and a Broadway show as well as car parking facilities.

"In camping, a packaged deal might include a trailer reservation," Helweg said. In such cases, buying in a package would have some economic advantage. He emphasized the importance for industry to regard leisure time as a product.

"The theater no longer is just in the theater business. It's now a part of the leisure time industry and must compete with other activities such as golf and camping for a person's spare time," he said.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices closed moderately higher Tuesday, boosted by a late-session spurt.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 6.39 to 948.22, closing at its best level of the session. Throughout most of the session the blue-chip indicator had hovered within three to four points of Monday's close.

Analysts said the upswing was partly due to hopes of a new Vietnam peace initiative in view of presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger's talks in Peking.

Technical factors also helped drive up prices, brokers said, citing the recent downward drift of the past couple of sessions.

Although trading had picked up from the slow levels of recent days, it was still relatively light, indicating that many traders were continuing to perch on the sidelines, brokers noted.

Big Board volume totaled 14.98 million shares, versus 11.66 million Monday. Trading picked up toward the close.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks was up 0.22 to 60.13.

Of the 1,761 issues traded on the Big Board, 723 advanced and 681 declined. There were 45 new highs and 103 new lows.

Oils, airlines, steel, chemicals and mail order-retail were higher. Rubber issues were off, and most other categories were mixed.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 1.5 to 326.9, with industrials up 3.3, rails up 0.2, and utilities up 0.4.

On the Big Board, there were 105 blocks of 10,000 shares or over, compared with a revised total of 75 Monday.

Curtiss-Wright, which has North American rights to the Wankel engine, was most active on the Big Board, rising 1/2 to 49 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index rose 0.02 to 27.50. Of the 1,182 issues traded, 435 advanced and 459 declined. Volume totaled 4.03 million shares, compared with 3.37 million shares Monday.

In over-the-counter trading, the NASDAQ composite index rose 0.31 to 131.07, and the industrial index rose 0.64 to 140.75.

AP) — The first official figures from the People's Republic of China in more than a decade place its economic growth rate among the highest in the world, the U.N. World Economic Survey revealed Monday.

The 101-page book on current economic conditions reported that in 1971, production rose 10 per cent in China, against 8.1 per cent in Japan, 6 per cent in the Soviet Union and 2.7 per cent in the United States.

The survey indicated China's growth rate was exceeded only by Romania, Brazil and Iran and tied by South Korea. Romania was highest with 12.5 per cent.

Selected data on the Chinese economy as a whole were published officially for the first time in more than a decade, showing a growth rate of 10 per cent for the "combined production of industry and agriculture," the report said.

"The same rate was given for the growth of industry, implying a parallel increase in the output of agriculture. Although bad weather in some provinces caused local setbacks in grain production, the country's total grain output increased by 2.5 per cent—from 240 to 246 million tons."

"According to official statements," the study said, "in 1971 China became the world's largest producer of cotton cloth, the main manufactured item of popular consumption," turning out nine million tons of it.

The output of crude steel increased 18 per cent to 21 million tons a year, "placing China between France and Italy in the list of world producers."

Production of iron ore rose 26 per cent to 27 million tons, pig iron 23 per cent to 22 million tons, coal 8 per cent to between 300 and 350 million tons, crude oil 27.2 per cent to about 25.5 million tons and chemical fertilizers 20.2 per cent to nearly 17 tons. Iron ore, pig iron and coal output were still below 1960 levels, however.

"The characteristic feature of the Chinese process of industrialization is the emphasis laid on establishing small and medium-sized mines and factories, based on local supplies, in various lines of production," the survey observed.
